Training Course on

"Implementation of "Task Force on Climate-related Financial Disclosure" (TCFD) recommendation"

International investors and financial rating agencies increasingly have recognized the wide array of risk and opportunities that climate change poses to companies, therefore they are incorporating climate and environmental considerations into their investment decisions. TCFD recommendations were so developed to address this requirement.

Green Council would like to invite professionals who are of environmental, engineering and building management background to join us live in an exclusive interactive online training which will focus on the introduction of the TCFD recommendations and address how to assess and report climate-related risks into mainstream report.

Instructor

CDP is an international non-profit that runs the world's largest repository of environmental information collecting disclosure from companies and sub-national governments. Fully TCFD aligned, CDP uses its vast body of data accumulated over two decades to produce scoring, research and insights to catalyse sustainable investment, procurement and policy decisions across the globe.

Mr. Dennis Wan, Corporations & Supply Chain Lead, CDP

Dennis heads the regional front-line team servicing companies disclosing to CDP. He is a recent career switcher to the field of environmental transparency, having previously spent over 20 years in international finance. His immediately preceding role was Credit Suisse's Hong Kong COO – running the Board of Directors and governance of risk and controls through the monitoring of metrics and targets – all being practical experience of the heart of TCFD's recommendations. Dennis graduated from Imperial College and is a Chartered Accountant.

Ms Elizabeth Lo, Senior Project officer, CDP

Elizabeth closely supports Hong Kong and Southeast Asia corporations on their sustainability journeys starting from disclosure and progressing through higher standards of environmental stewardship such as TCFD and Science-Based Targets. Prior to joining CDP, she worked as an analyst in Ecovadis, a sustainability rating company headquartered in Paris. Elizabeth holds a MSc in Sustainability and Business from the University of Leeds, and BA in Business Management from the University of Sheffield.

Ms Kelly So, Corporate Engagement Officer, CDP

Currently based in CDP's Hong Kong office, Kelly engages with high-impact listed companies in the Oceania region to drive corporate action on climate, water and forests-related disclosures. She joined CDP from CECEP Environmental Consulting Group, where she was a consultant specializing in ESG reporting and assurance, GHG accounting, stakeholder engagement and ESG risk assessment. Kelly holds a BSc in Environmental Management and Technology from the Hong Kong University of Science and Technology.
